

News Release
Office of the Integrity Commissioner
January 28, 2019

As New Brunswick's Acting Integrity Commissioner, I am pleased to announce Data Privacy Day 2019 and the launch of our Office's new website.

On January 28, 2019, the Office of the Integrity Commissioner joins other provinces and territories across Canada and other countries around the world in celebrating Data Privacy Day.

Data privacy day is an effort to raise awareness of the impact of technology on our right to privacy, including the many ways personal information is collected, used, disclosed, and stored. As citizens, we must be vigilant about protecting our personal information. We must hold those institutions we trust with our information to account. The observance of Data Privacy Day also underlines the importance of protecting personal information, a value our Office is committed to upholding.

We are pleased to take this opportunity to announce the launch of our new Office website, which we hope will be a helpful resource for the general public and those who are subject to oversight by this Office. The website reflects the recent changes made to our mandates as well as the legislation we oversee. Link to website: <https://www.oic-bci.ca>

More information about Data Privacy Day is available on the Information Commissioner of Canada's website at: <https://www.priv.gc.ca>

Media contact:

Charles Murray
Acting Integrity Commissioner
(506) 453-5965

Communiqué de Presse